When snow falls, trucks fly.

Shortly before midnight on Thursday, Jan. 26, trucks from T&J and Tapp's towing companies took these two and nine other cars from Grant Street. Before the night was over, a total of 226 cars had been removed from Portland streets.

For the City of Portland and its unwary drivers, parking bans are expensive and unpopular. For the towing companies, snow is money.

Democratic Party.

The One Takes Lumps for real estate slump
After months of real estate sales, the last quarterly report issued by the One Source building company, headed by Charles G. Sevigny, showed a $1 million loss. Sevigny, who has been in business
for real estate now totals nearly $2 million in liabilities. He said he expects to recover most of the losses.

“We are looking for a special source of revenue to pay off our debts. We have not yet decided what the source will be,” he said.

The One Source building company, which was founded in 1987, has seen a slowdown in new construction. The company has been unable to sell the apartments they have built in Portland and Brunswick.

Trash plant takes
cash to satisfy laws

The state Bureau of Labor Standards has slapped $100,000
in fines on the Regional Waste Authority in Portland. The bureau found the company had failed to comply with the city code.

City wraps up new garbage laws

The City Council
decided Jan. 30 that garbage behavior in the city will be monitored for 24 hours after the building department.

The city will begin monitoring garbage behavior
with a series of fines.

There will be a fine of $50 for each violation.

The next morning, Neil Williamson stood in line at the International Ferry Terminal parking lot, waiting to reclaim his car: "I came out and said, 'I parked behind John,' " Williamson said. "Of course, John's car wasn't there either."

Both of their cars, along with those of another roommate and a friend, had been towed.

It cost Williamson $65 to get his car back - $40 to the towing company and $25 to the city for impounding. He also had to pay $25 to the city for the Ferry Terminal parking lot, waiting to reclaim his car.

The next morning, Neil Williamson stood in line at the International Ferry Terminal to reclaim his car. He had let his car sit at the terminal, it would have been plowed. If he had let his car sit at the terminal, it would have been plowed.

FOR LATE STARTERS
LAST WEEK'S CLUE (#1)
Near a corner named for milk
you'll find drinks of a different ilk.
And if you chance to see The Dragon, change your ways or you'll be draggin' and longing for the land of silk.

Map piece still available at this location.

THE CONTEST
It's easy to play. There are two parts:
1. The Weekly Riddle: A weekly riddle will appear on the Treasure Hunt page in Casco Bay Weekly. Each week's riddle will be read on the air on WBLM (107.5 FM) and on Portland's newest TV station, NTV (UHF Channel 24). The answer to each week's riddle will be one of the businesses sponsoring the Treasure Hunt.
2. The Treasure Map: Once you solve the week's riddle, go to that sponsoring location and ask for that week's piece of the treasure map. At the end of the 10-week contest, you will have a 9-piece treasure map and a map legend. Once it's pieced together correctly, you will have a map of Casco Bay. By using the legend and reading the map, you will be able to find the location of the treasure: a location in Casco Bay.

And don't worry if you're a late starter - each week's correct location will keep extras of their map piece for the entire contest.
