A woman becomes pregnant.

If she planned to be, she will find support. Society will stroke her expanding belly.

If not, she could find herself alone yet surrounded by misleading or clinical advisors concerned less with the woman than with the fetus. See page 8.
Are you reaching the right customers?

The Convoy hits snag at border

The convoy that left Portland's Monument Square May 21 with humanitarian aid for the victims of war in Central America has found itself something of a Mexican standoff - applying for a visa at the border.

When the 37-vehicle convoy, led by the border June 7 at Laredo, Texas, arrived at a similar checkpoint in the US Customs and Treasury Department offices, the March against the embargo. The US Customs and Treasury Department staff chose to apply for a visa at the border.

The newspaper was shuttled to the border by 30-year-old Richard Herrera. The smoke from the trailer was noticeable to the Postal Service worker. Richard Herrera. The smoke from the trailer was noticeable to the Postal Service worker.

A sign posted in the window at Hu Shang's.

A handful of Ku Klux Klan protesters attempted to stage a rally in South Portland last weekend, but were prevented from doing so by hundreds of angry anti-Klan protestors.

The protestors who claimed prior experience with the Klan were on the scene before the Falmouth-based vehicle convoy reached the Portland police officers told the press that a police permit had been issued for the rally - came individually and united under an umbrella group called The Coalition Against Racial Hatred.

The Klan, whose members often portray themselves as defenders of an "Invisible Empire," is a century-old organization that advocates for a European-American nation. The group is known for its paramilitary strengths, and members have been involved in races, shootings, and bombings in Maine. The Klan's black suit, black coat, and black hat were immediately surrounded by the protestors.

The Klansman pushed the black man out of return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.

The arrest and-related incident involved view their main objective as delivering the aid to the patients in return. A dozen South Portland police then apprehended the Klansman, who later identified himself to police as Richard Herrera, 30.
Sunny skies not so bright for farmers

The situation does not bode well for the area's agricultural sector. After a summer of below-normal rainfall and drought, farmers are facing a critical situation that could have far-reaching consequences. The lack of moisture has left many fields dry, making it difficult for crops to grow. This is particularly concerning for the area's agricultural community, which relies heavily on a reliable water supply.

In many regions, the drought has led to a decrease in the availability of water for crops and livestock. This has forced farmers to make difficult decisions about how to allocate their limited water resources. Some farmers have had to reduce their crop production, while others have had to rely on supplemental irrigation to keep their crops alive.

The situation is expected to worsen as the summer progresses, with the risk of a significant decrease in precipitation. Farmers are urged to be proactive in planning for the future, including exploring alternative irrigation methods and considering the potential impacts of a prolonged drought on their businesses.

Sunday suits Old Port Fest

The weather was perfect for the Sunday suits Old Port Fest, which took place on a Sunday afternoon. The festival featured live music, food, and a variety of activities for people of all ages to enjoy. The atmosphere was lively and festive, with crowds gathering to celebrate the occasion.

The festival was a popular event, with large crowds enjoying the music and the variety of food options available. The food was delicious and varied, with many people enjoying the fish and chips and the lobster rolls.

The festival wrapped up to the delight of the crowd, who were eager to enjoy the music and the festive atmosphere. The event was a success, and the organizers were pleased with the turnout and the positive feedback they received. They are already looking forward to next year's festival, and are planning to make it even better.
Abortion must not result, as Portland psychotherapist Dr. James Cherry has said, "as one of the silences surrounding women's lives."

It's really the specter of AIDS to bring discussion of preventative viril control out of the silence. We can't wait for such a crisis before discussing abortion. Those who oppose abortion -- and there are many -- must be willing to actually discuss their opposition with the pro-choice forces. Women under the stress of an unwanted pregnancy are usually the most ready candidates for this debate. Misrepresentation of the pro-choice position does not contribute to the understandable moral position of pre- and post-abortion counseling must be made a part of the procedure.

Everyone -- men and women, celebrate and sexually unfortunate consequences of a sexually free society must become as least as unashamed as our behavior.

--Mont

Lost in the Maze?

How to deal with City Hall

As a former city employee, I understand the frustrations the public feels in its attempts to gain access to city government.

Citizens have thrown up their hands in despair after failing to locate the person, or department, they believe is responsible for helping them. We encourage you to take a few extra minutes to contact the individual you originally spoke to. Always carbon copy your letter to your city councilor. By doing this, you can locate a responsible individual and save yourself time.

There are a few common mistakes people make when contacting City Hall.

Write your question or problem on a separate piece of paper.

Be precise and clear about why you are calling. This same rule applies to in-person visits and written inquiries. It is imperative that the correspondences be as precise and clear about why you are calling. This same rule applies to in-person visits and written inquiries. It is imperative that the correspondences be as precise and clear about why you are calling.

Write to the proper department. Although there are exceptions, the public feels in its attempts to gain access to city government.

1. Define your question.

If you have a problem with a public service, you don't ask the city employees to fix it for you. If you have a question about your property taxes, you don't call the city clerk. With any organization people have the tendency to call the wrong person. However, because of the nature of bureaucracy it is often difficult to find that person. In some departments, whatever happens to pick up the telephone on a particular day becomes a self-appointed expert on all city matters. Thus, you will get an answer to your question, but it won't necessarily be the correct one. On the other hand, in other offices the opposite is true. It seems like if you know something, including the people in that particular office.

2. Talk to the right person.

As a former city employee, I understand the frustrations the public feels in its attempts to gain access to city government. Write to the proper department. Although there are exceptions, the public feels in its attempts to gain access to city government.

As a former city employee, I understand the frustrations the public feels in its attempts to gain access to city government. Write to the proper department. Although there are exceptions, the public feels in its attempts to gain access to city government.
A woman becomes pregnant.

Ideally, she planned to be. She can surround herself with medical care, gain access to support systems, and receive strokes from society on account of her expanding belly.

If she didn't plan to be, it's a different story.

A lot of people will try to get involved in the choice she will inevitably have to make.

Pro-liers will look at her and see a fetus. They'll show her pictures of dead babies.

Abortion clinics will talk to her — but counsel the fetus. Once the fetus is gone, so are they.

Public clinics will talk to her — when they can.

In response to Casco Bay Weekly's repeated phone calls to the Center for a response, Dave Bouffard, who identified himself only as a staff person, read the clinic's prepared statement: "We are here to help women make an informed choice. We receive letters of gratitude frequently. When it has been demonstrated by the media that fair coverage is being given to the abortion issue, then we will be willing to talk." Bouffard would not comment on what the clinic does beyond saying "we offer just what it says in our advertisements."

The Center has paid advertisements in the NYNEX Yellow pages under birth control information centers and pregnancy information services. The ads found under "pregnancy information services" promises "abortion information, free pregnancy test, results before you leave, completely confidential, walk in or call" and lists their address and phone number.

"We have had abortions, the movie tells me. Nathanson claims this is "syndical crime" involved in abortion.

Crisi smiled when she restocked the room and saw that I hadn't turned it off. She sat beside me and told me I was pregnant. I acted upset.

"Can you carry the child or kill it?" she said.

To abortion clinics, a woman with a fetus means $200 more in revenue.

According to the Maine Department of Human Services, 3,521 Maine women had abortions in 1986. That's nearly ten a day in the state, at least once a day in Portland.

Two area abortion clinics agreed that pregnant women spend three to five hours at the clinic the day of the abortion while the post-fetus follow-up takes all of 10 minutes. "That's the way it is," said a counselor at a local abortion clinic.

3,521 Maine women had abortions in 1986. That's nearly ten a day in the state, at least one a day in Portland.

Maine Department of Human Services
I'!

"The answer isn't pro-life or abortion" Betsey Campbell, Women's Community Health Center

She said that part of the three to five hours is individualized care that allows each woman as much support, education and ventilation as she needs beforehand. "The follow-up, she added, "is only on the physical aspect and not the emotional side. "We just can't provide the optimum number of counselors," she said.

There is a national organization that formed a chapter in Maine in April 1988 whose goals are to help women who have already had abortions and to educate women about abortion. It was formed by women who had had abortions. Women Explained by Abortion (WERA) chapter coordinator Jackie Chalmers explained that the organization encourages women to come to Christ for forgiveness for taking the life of a human being. "Chalmers said they help the woman recognize that she has murdered a child and accept responsibility for it.

The Portland area has support groups for adoptees, head injury victims, mothers of twins, families and friends of gays, burned parents, but no support group for the thousands of Maine women who had had abortions. NOW member Marilyn Kirby said that there was an abortion support group in Portland five or six years ago, that the "women's Choice is consumer oriented because it is more efficient without the protocol and paperwork required at the federally subsidized Family Planning facility.

"Women 20 and older who don't meet low-income eligibility requirements now have a place where they can find help," she said. "The answer isn't pro-life or abortion."

Support groups, she reasons, currently are no public abortion good at creating a forum. "We just can't provide the optimum number of counselors," she said.

"We just can't provide the optimum number of counselors," she said.

Despite this universally recognized lack of support systems, there are hurdles to setting up a support group. Several area therapists admitted that if one clinic actually found six or more willing women at a similar post-abortion stage, they would be, if discovered, the target of pro-life harassment.

There is a national organization that formed a chapter in Maine in April 1988 whose goals are to help women who have already had abortions and to educate women about abortion. It was formed by women who had had abortions. Women Explained by Abortion (WERA) chapter coordinator Jackie Chalmers explained that the organization encourages women to come to Christ for forgiveness for taking the life of a human being. "Chalmers said they help the woman recognize that she has murdered a child and accept responsibility for it.

Margery Noel is a doctor of psychology and certified sex therapist in Falmouth. She has counseled women after they've had abortions, and says that although after-care needs vary, she "has no rituals, because there are no rituals, markers, or public support groups."

In the Portland area there are support groups for adoptees, head injury victims, mothers of twins, families and friends of gays, burned parents, but no support group for the thousands of Maine women who had had abortions.

NOW member Marilyn Kirby said that there was an abortion support group in Portland five or six years ago, that the "women's Choice is consumer oriented because it is more efficient without the protocol and paperwork required at the federally subsidized Family Planning facility."

"Women 20 and older who don't meet low-income eligibility requirements now have a place where they can find help," she said. "The answer isn't pro-life or abortion."

A center like this, although positive for women, only makes a slight ripple. Without an adequate support system, abortion becomes "one of the silences surrounding woman's lives," said Clayes. She calls abortion "the invisible loss" because there are no rituals, markers, or public support groups. She added that pro-life labels of "mass murderers" and "baby killers" further alienate these women.

Some private counselors offer post-abortion help for about $20 per hour, but these places tend to exclude many women. As Clayes said, "if women don't have insurance or money, after-care is not readily available to those most in need."

The Community Counseling Center's pregnancy counseling program includes some post-abortion counseling and Women's Community Health Center offers post-abortion counseling for $20 per hour. Betsey Campbell, the director at Women's Community Health Center, said she's seen the number of abortions decreasing recently due to better birth control innsation. "We'd be right out of business if there were no abortions," she said. "But we're all human. But the answer isn't pro-life or abortion."

Community Pregnancy Center Portland: 773-6660

Pregnancy testing and perspectives on abortion.

Maine Medical Center Portland: 871-2763

Obstetrics/Gynecology clinic including abortion for county residents who are eligible patients.

Mother and Unborn Baby Care Portland: 773-3390

Prenatal care, motherhood support groups, housing and other services.

Women's Community Health Center Portland: 773-7247

Prenatal care, motherhood support groups, housing and other services.

Pregnancy testing, birth control, referrals for prenatal care.

St. Andrew's Home Bridgeport: 282-3330

Group home for 4 young pregnant women on first-come, first-served basis. Counseling, transportation to prenatal care, adoption services.

Women's Community Health Center Portland: 773-7247

Pregnancy testing, birth control, referrals for prenatal care, adoption services.

Women Exploited by Abortion Limerick: 773-5077

Support group of women who have had abortions.

Women to Women Yarmouth: 871-0125

Pregnancy testing, birth control, referrals for prenatal care and abortion.

Young Women's Christian Association Portland: 874-1120

Pregnancy testing and assistance for pregnant teenagers.
Every day we see the same faces, the same street corners, and we pass right by. The point is to pause today to pursue the familiar. Michael Waters, a native Alaskan, exhibits "Fashions in Alaska" at Gallery 97 on Middle St. He looks into the familiar to give us a glimpse of the life contained within. Some of his scenes are so familiar that we have never really seen them before. Gallery 97 is open today. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10-6, Thursdays 10-5.

Get out of those same rooms. Tonight put a find of music for everyone, for every budget in the club around Portland. Taylor Made, an 8-piece R&B band, features the sea player from history's latest album and the father of solo artists. The sea player also performs with the Stone Docks. Also from Boston, Robin Lea & The Lea - busker fame is appearing at Robinson's, 776-5057. Trust yourself.

The fifth anniversary celebration of the PMA's Peabody Building continues today with the opening of "Three Years in The Desert," a Museum of Art Collection since 1983. Featuring in addition to the museum's collection since 1983, the exhibit demonstrates the museum's changing philosophy. The exhibit includes examples from all parts of the collection, including every new acquisition recently added to the Portland. The PMA is open today from 10-5.

The last day of spring. Cheer up. Theorically, the snowstorm won't go below 60 again.

The Gulf of Maine Aquarium's education director is leading a Low Tide Walk today at Kettle Cove in Cape Elizabeth. More than go into the sea. Learn about the marine animals and plants you'll find at your stride. Reservations are required. $3. Call 772-2321.

Nina Scangas's play "Homesteader" is being performed at Russell Hall on the USM Gorham campus. The reading will occur at 6. The drama concerns the lives of a few people in a small, isolated fishing village. Tickets are $5-$11. Through July 3.

Guaranteed Whale Watching Cruise. The Maine Audubon Society is offering a trip aboard the 75-foot passenger vessel "Indian." Travel to Jefferson's Ledge, 30 miles off the coast of New Hampshire. Jeffery's Ledge is the feeding ground for humpback, humpback, and minke whales. Staff members of the "Indian" will provide commentary and answer questions. Whale sightings are guaranteed or the "Indian" will give you free passage on a future trip. Call the Maine Audubon Society for further information, 772-3030.

Low Tide Walk today at Kettle Cove in Cape Elizabeth. Learn about the marine animals and plants you'll find at your stride. Reservations are required. $3. Call 772-2321.

Guaranteed Whale Watching Cruise. The Maine Audubon Society is offering a trip aboard the 75-foot passenger vessel "Indian." Travel to Jefferson's Ledge, 30 miles off the coast of New Hampshire. Jeffery's Ledge is the feeding ground for humpback, humpback, and minke whales. Staff members of the "Indian" will provide commentary and answer questions. Whale sightings are guaranteed or the "Indian" will give you free passage on a future trip. Call the Maine Audubon Society for further information, 772-3030.
On the Wall

Portland Museum of Art
Offering: 1:30 and 5:30 pm, Sat. and Sun. Free. For more information, call 772-9671.

At the movies: June 20-21, Fugly and assistant; June 21-22, 10. At the movies: June 20-21, 7:30 and 9:30.

In the art galleries:

Opening:

August in Wolfgan

197 Broadway

Opening:

Whitney Museum

75 Varick Street

Opening:

Brooklyn Folk

At the movies: June 20-21, 7:30 and 9:30.

In the art galleries:

Opening:

August in Wolfgan

197 Broadway

Opening:

Whitney Museum

75 Varick Street

Opening:

Brooklyn Folk

At the movies: June 20-21, 7:30 and 9:30.

In the art galleries:

Opening:

August in Wolfgan

197 Broadway

Opening:

Whitney Museum

75 Varick Street

Opening:

Brooklyn Folk

At the movies: June 20-21, 7:30 and 9:30.
John Witten was the first poet to find relief in the act of reading and writing sound poetry. Sound poets use the sounds of words and syllables, rather than just letters, to create a new experience of poetry. The sounds remain meaningful even when the words themselves are changed or destroyed.

Witten, a poet who lives in New York, had a love for words that went beyond their meaning. He believed that words could be used to create a new kind of poetry, one that focuses on the sounds of the language rather than on the letters themselves.

Witten's technique involves taking a poem and repeating it in a way that emphasizes the sounds of the words. He often uses a technique called "merging," where he takes two words and combines them into a single sound.

Witten also used the technique of "playing the poem," where he would read a poem aloud and then repeat it in a way that emphasized the sounds of the words. He would often use a technique called "stuttering," where he would repeat a word or phrase in a way that emphasized the sound of the word.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.

Witten's poetry is not just a matter of using words, but rather a matter of using the sounds of the words to create a new kind of experience. His poetry is about the experience of reading and writing, rather than the meaning of the words themselves.
Tiffany explodes on the scene revived, new acts established. "I to pop. Ronnie McDowell to the airwaves as redone hits top treatment of passing the earlier hit."

"him"). version of Twitty's nie Van Shelton did such a "Life You Love Me" (first done "her" by Otis Campbell cuts updated and R&B oldies, turning them into hip-swinging, "I" life new hits with multi-track orchestrations, a wonderfully unorthodox Presley. Hank Williams Jr. did

"Don't Stop 'til You Get Enough"

"What Kind of Lover You Are"

"Make Out with My Life"

"Show me a Man Eating an Artichoke and I'll show you what kind of lover she'd like." ANONYMOUS

The sensual artichoke

SUNDAYMORNING JAZZ

this space . for rent

INTERESTED? Call 775-6601

Photograph courtesy of the死者 family.

The sensual artichoke

The sensuous artichoke was thought to be an aphrodisiac, being one of the few plants that women could actually strip the small mound of body line before rushing into relating flirtatiously closed, "cnauffer its outer coverings," and it was eaten one, in an act of aggression..."over

"It is presented to you firm, shapeless and smooth."

"Sit and wait on it again ... and again and again..."

"It was acknowledged, perhaps even beloved, before the Revolution toward picking a lover. This Portland laurel growing was being..."

"I was astonished," he said, "and moved.

"Made love to a millennial in the street.

"And I'll let you in on one of the best places to buy Birkenstock footwear..."
New mortgage lenders, trying to drum up more business, are offering borrowers programs with all kinds of bells and whistles.

One special feature in each program, they say, is likely to be the bottom line—usually the interest rate or other charges. Not a true rate, but a rate that is competitive with other lenders.

Some lenders, like the National Mortgage Power, are offering programs with all under MortgagePower, they say. These programs are designed to make the mortgage process easier for homebuyers.

For example, the National Mortgage Power is offering a program called "AutoPlus," which allows homebuyers to apply for a mortgage online. The process is said to be more efficient and less stressful for borrowers.

Other lenders are offering programs that provide additional benefits to homebuyers, such as reduced closing costs or lower interest rates. Some lenders are also offering programs that are specifically designed for first-time homebuyers.
1. I, confidential way to get in touch with PSYCHOTHERAPIST secretary. 772-1959, 9-5 pm. Camp Craft Director, Arts and school year.

2. RADON GAS person and you classes in yoga, children 3-5. Reasonable tuition, 4449. CO-OPERATIVE

3. find a good home for the Supervision

4. ATTENTION MODELS, attractive, glamorous, willing to work reasonable hours, weekly pay. We pay up to $300-$675/week. Small quarters, 6'2", Ocean Ptld. 04104-2061.

5. Send your application for air or water, $25 each. Return

6. BooHOO WORK! We pay to $2400/month. (207) 774-9172. We respect your privacy and want to make sure you present your

7. ATOMIC SHOTGUNSMITH, 700 W. State St., Portland, Maine. Phone: 779-2345. WANTED: 1 of the very few are available on video

8. The classic has one of the most

9. The real star of baseball legend, and Hollywood fans have

10. baseball player that really is a star. This has been a batch of comedies that made

11. at Yankee Stadium with normal

12. The unusual biography of Scooter

13. "She was given to be my.best friend

16. "The Parent Trap." With Don Grady as Ron Howard, the baseball player of our last week's baseball star, "The Parent Trap." With Don Grady as Ron Howard, the baseball player of our last week's baseball legend, and Hollywood fans have

17. home video yet. Those include the only a poor remake of

18. "Children's History of the United States" is special footage of

19. "Two musical steal the show."

20. Baseball and Father's Day Menus with Movie

21. Baseball and Father's Day Menus with Movie
Often I think of the beautiful town
That is seated by the sea;
Often I wish I'd known of Casco Bay Weekly

Don't be a Long Fellow,
Get your Wadsworth every Tuesday in Casco Bay Weekly.

We distributed 15,000 copies of our first issue, and more than 13,000 of you picked one up. Thank you for one each week at one of those places.