The people have spoken. Here are the people, places and temptations that make Greater Portland great.

The most effective citizen group of 1991: Campaign for Sensible Transportation

The Campaign for Sensible Transportation has been selected by Casco Bay Weekly readers as the most effective activist group of 1991. Through their efforts, the people of Maine were able to put themselves in the driver's seat last November. The people of Maine voted overwhelmingly for a referendum that stopped the planned widening of the Maine Turnpike. The referendum was passed by a vote of 60.3 percent. The campaign raised more than $300,000 and worked hard to convince voters that the Turnpike Authority should be held accountable for its decisions.

The Campaign for Sensible Transportation was able to overcome overwhelming odds. The campaign was led by a small group of volunteers who worked hard to convince voters that the Turnpike Authority should be held accountable for its decisions. The campaign was able to overcome overwhelming odds.

Best local music (b) Monica Wood

"I love Portland," says Wood, a native of Maine, who's been in Portland so long she considers this her hometown. "I can't be the most rooted person on Earth. But I'm 26 and in that time, 26 is the number people think is the most rooted period of our lives. I went to colleges in this year, but now I'm moving back to Portland because Portland is so faithful to me."

Best local post: Steve Luttell, on the street.

"We're," says Brushe with a laugh. (Brushe laughs a lot.) "It's definitely an honor, two years in a row. It's just nice to know that people actually come to my site and think I'm good."

Crossjewels

"We try harder," laughs Ralph Price, owner of the trendy store at 37 Congress St. "And all of us on the staff need to be dynamic professionals, which works very nicely if you're a jeweler."

Best actor/actress: Tanya Dewey

"I feel really privileged to be a working actress considering what's going on with the arts scene," says Dewey, who has been with Mad Horse Theatre Company for 10 years. "I also feel incredibly lucky to be in a community that does as well as we do."

Best local post: Steve Luttell, on the street.

"Writing poetry is sort of a drain habit," says Luttell, who also compiles it in his description of love notes. "One becomes obsessed with it sometimes," he explains. "I just can't stop."
