Skateboarders are jumping the curbs of civilization, but they don’t want to talk about it.

By W. D. Cutlip

Scott Sevigny seems to stand motionless on his confetti, shredding effortlessly beneath the hip-hop/Ratz skate-while-the-cyberpunk-erwin-ship-from-remote-future-land. He pauses at the top of a ramp to watch his board twist out and roll back into the gravity well, seamlessly blending the topography of Ratz into a gestalt of motion and never-ending grace. What news? Scott’s progress with a few appropriately profane exclamations. Scott is ripping the pipes like so much speed metal that rings in the ear long after you’ve left Ratz. Scott Sevigny is jumping the curbs of civilization to bring you news that you may not like, that you may not believe, that you may have apparently forgotten.

Hard news made harder
Area reporters guarding their notebooks

By Kelly Strawser

Last February, WCSH-TV viewers who were tuned to a 6 p.m. news broadcast witnessed the rare spectacle of a public official admitting he was wrong. It was the sort of story that people who report the news work hard to get: a supposedly just guy was being openly, a supposedly just system was being manipulated.

Area reporters guarding their notebooks...
"Racism cuts both ways"

I should like to reply to a letter written by B. Stone, who says that blacks are more impotent and impotent than the whites, and that blacks speak with a shrill voice. I have read many books on the subject, but I have not been able to find any evidence to support his views. The only evidence I have found is that blacks have a higher voice pitch than whites, but this is due to a number of physical and psychological factors, and is not necessarily indicative of impotence.

Bowdon guards "just fine"

I have spoken with Bowdon, and I can assure you that he is doing just fine. His voice is clear and distinct, and he is able to communicate effectively with others. The only problem he has is with his hearing, but this is being addressed by the hospital staff.

"The question is who is stupid?"

I think that the question is who is stupid. We all make mistakes, and it is important to learn from them. The question is not about who is better at something, but about who is willing to learn. People who are willing to learn are not stupid.

"CSW here to stay"

I am a very big fan of the Casco Bay Weekly, and I am here to stay. I believe that the paper is doing a good job of covering the issues of the day, and I am proud to be a part of it.

"WHAT'S YOUR BLOOD PRESSURE?"

One out of every four adults has high blood pressure. It can be controlled, but it is best to control it as soon as possible. The sooner you start, the better. It is never too late to start.

"Sleeping Advertising"

Sleeping advertising is a great way to reach your target audience. It is a subtle way to get your message across, and it is effective.

"Cranes Weekly"

Cranes Weekly is a great newspaper. It is a very good little newspaper, and I hope you continue to stay in touch.

"Memories of Graduation"

A time for saying farewell. To very special times. Hold on to them forever with pictures.

Search Engine Optimization

These search engines are the major players in the search engine market. They use different algorithms to rank websites in their search results. Some of the most popular search engines include Google, Bing, and Yahoo. These engines use a combination of factors to determine the relevance and importance of a website, such as keyword usage, backlinks, and page structure. The search engines are always evolving, and new algorithms are introduced to improve the search results. It's important for website owners to stay up-to-date with these changes to optimize their site for search engines.
