Hannaford took care of itself, not Wellby

By Paul Kar

When higher-ups at Scarborough grocery chain Hannaford Bros. decided in January to sell off its subsidiary drug stores, top officials at Wellby Super Drug Store got together and proposed a buyout. Hannaford officials said they'd strongly consider the offer.

Four months later, Hannaford shocked workers by telling the chain would sell Wellby to Rite Aid, a huge drugstore chain described by one high-level Hannaford staffer as "sleazy, the bottom of the line." Hannaford, which will announce a new subsidiary stockholders' meeting on May 14 at the Portland Regency Hotel, will make millions on the deal. Some of that money will be used to build new Shop 'n Save stores in New Hampshire and New York.

Meanwhile, Wellby employees benefitted by being bought out of the chain. And Wellby, a mainstay in the area, will be replaced by a string of cookie-cutter discount drug stores. "They couldn't do this employee buyout," said the high-level Hannaford employee, who spoke to CBW on condition of anonymity. "Instead, Hannaford sold employees down the pike. They and consumers will lose."

Uncovering Portland's erogenous zones

Uncovered: Portland recently granted two large nightclubs exclusive license to present topless entertainment, while forcing dancers at smaller clubs to take cover.

Topless supporters accused the city of trying to legislate morality. Family-oriented conservatives and some feminists urged the city to go further. The Portland City Council spent an hour trying to decide what a "pastie" is.

Meanwhile, at quiet neighborhood bars and at a million-dollar nightclub, the strip shows continue every night of the week. It's legal. And the women who do it make a lot of money.

But it isn't a new thing. And it isn't all that glamorous. For a tour of Portland's erogenous zones, and an introduction to the people who work there, see page 14.

Island tax district might be illegal

The Maine Attorney General's office has concluded that a special tax district deemed necessary to lower taxes on some property areas around the city of Portland does not meet the requirements of the enabling legislation. "Such a special tax district would violate the Maine Constitution, in that it could be used to lower taxes and create a special district for recreational purposes," said Attorney General James T. Smith.

Smith's decision is significant because the city of Portland is considering the possibility of creating a special tax district to help fund the construction of a new city hall. The city is currently facing a $4 million shortfall in its proposed budget, and some city councilors have suggested that the city create a special tax district to help cover the costs of the new building.

Smith's decision has prompted the city council to consider alternatives to the special tax district. Some councilors have suggested that the city could consider a property tax increase, while others have suggested that the city could seek assistance from the state or federal government.

In an interview, Portland Mayor Tom Allen said that the city is considering all options, but that the special tax district is currently favored. "We've been very clear that we're looking at all options, but we're moving forward with the special tax district," Allen said.

Allen said that the city is hoping to have a final decision on the special tax district by the end of the month. "We're working on a plan, and we'll have a decision by the end of the month," Allen said.

Allen said that the city is also considering other options, including a property tax increase, a special sales tax, and state or federal assistance.

The city of Portland has been facing a budget shortfall for several years, and has been forced to cut services and raise taxes in order to maintain its budget. The city is currently operating on a $4 million budget deficit, and is facing a $4.5 million shortfall in its proposed budget for next year.

The city council is expected to make a decision on the special tax district by the end of the month. The city is also expected to make a decision on the property tax increase by the end of May.

The city of Portland is located on the southern tip of Maine, and is home to one of the nation's busiest ports. The city is also home to a number of colleges and universities, including the University of Southern Maine and the University of New England.

The city of Portland is also home to a number of museums and cultural institutions, including the Portland Museum of Art and the Portland Civic Center. The city is also home to a number of parks and recreational areas, including Fort Williams Park and the Eastern Promenade.

The city of Portland is also home to a number of businesses and industries, including the Portland International Jetport and the Maine State Pier.

Old Orchard Beach officials may kick Portland’s lead and freeze its liquor by the gallon ban, an approach that gives more latitude to a liquor license in an effort to curb overconsumption on the beach.

The town will begin 26-hour beach season this summer and post oil-stained signs that warn, "Public drinking of alcoholic beverages is a preventable offense." Officials are also considering a ban on any liquor licenses and creating a tough enforcement that would discourage littering in bars.

HANNAFORD, NOT WELLBY

The night of May 1 was a festive one for well-wishers who came out to bid farewell to the store that many had considered their own. The darkened sky was illuminated by the flickering lights of the store's sign, a stark contrast to the lively faces of the customers who filled the aisles.

"It's been a long time coming," said one customer. "I've been coming here for as long as I can remember." The stores historic red and white sign was illuminated by the stage lights, and the sound of live music filled the air. People danced and sang along to popular tunes, celebrating the closing of the store.

"It's a bittersweet moment," said another customer. "I'll miss coming here, but I know it's for the best." The store was a hub of activity as people gathered to reminisce about the store's past.

"This store was more than just a place to shop," said a store employee. "It was a community gathering place." The employees gave speeches to thank the customers for their support, and to express their own feelings of loss.

"We have lost a great deal," said one employee. "But we know we have a job to do, and we will do it to the best of our abilities." The store was packed with people and employees alike, all of whom were eager to share their memories of the store and to celebrate its legacy.

The Closing Date:

The facility had its final day on May 1st, and the store was officially closed. The employees and customers gathered outside the store, saying goodbye to the building that had been a part of their lives for so long.

"I'm just sad to see it go," said one customer. "But I know it's the right thing to do." The employees handed out final t-shirts and other memorabilia to the customers, who lined up outside the store to purchase the last items.

"We'll miss the customers," said one employee. "But we'll remember them always." The store was turned off, and the doors closed for the final time.

"We'll miss it," said one customer. "But we know it's a new chapter for us." The store was a symbol of a community that had come together to support each other, and it would be remembered for its impact on the community.

"We'll miss it," said another customer. "But we know it's for the best." The store was a place of memories, and its legacy would live on in the hearts of its customers and employees.

Anatomy of Tyson's collapse

The story of Tyson's collapse can be traced back to several key events:

1. The publication of an article on April 24, 1990, which contained claims about Tyson's personal and financial affairs.
2. Tyson's response to the article, which flew in the face of his previous denials and admissions.
3. The impact of the article on Tyson's campaign, leading to a decrease in his public activity and a change in his strategy.
4. The role of the media in reporting the story, including the use of anonymous sources and the publication of documents.
5. The response of Tyson's supporters, who initially defended him but eventually withdrew their support.

The collapse of Tyson's campaign had far-reaching consequences, including a loss of momentum, a drop in public support, and a decline in his ability to win the election. The story also raised questions about the role of the media in shaping political discourse and the impact of political scandals on electoral outcomes.

Uncovering Portland's exotic zones

The last bare-breasted performance at Pepper's House was on the afternoon of May 2. Pepper's is a neighborhood bar. It's perched on the edge of the West End, overlooking the Millinocket Delta. Weathered planks cover the walls. Marley Davidson covers the mirror. A ray of sunlight sneaked past the doorman and glared into the smoke-filled bar. Men in plaid shirts hung over their ashtrays, with the company name. His belly hung out over jeans that depended on someone complaining about the activity.

Two days blandly passed. A style-male phantom mulling off the street corner, to stop a crowd of people coming out of the bar. A ray of light at the edge of the day yellowed. "Come on you guys, live up. This a fun time."

Tattoos played havoc on the forearms of a barker, who also looked liked someone who might wear a polyester suit and cutoff denim shorts. Her lips pursed as she swayed and gyrated to Bonnie Raitt's "I'm not going to lie to you."

The law has little to say about how much the dancers were dressed. A ray of sunlight sneaked past the doorman and glared into the smoke-filled bar. Men in plaid shirts hung over their ashtrays, with the company name. His belly hung out over jeans that depended on someone complaining about the activity.

Bumptious sanctity of CBA writers

I was shocked by the way the CBA writers covered the recent hearings ofer the CBA. There is a secret to CBA, thefürious sanctity over anything. When I enrolled in the CBA, some scribbled jargon and that their view was that to protect is a sacred thing.

Finally, various groups like Feminists Against Rape and for Portland chapter status of women during the CBA meetings, and a few are even amausing the presence of the sanctity of women. For me, the effort is not an effort. How can we allow those who engage in the destruction of women and hearing of the sanctity of women? By publishing it, I tell you.

It seems to me that we are now a nation of sanctity with an approach that is otherwise good. I think in such an atmosphere we can even write a letter to the mayor asking for a reformation of the sanctity of women.

Kudos to CBWs and with his approach on the whole, I found it good. I bet, my readers will find it effective. Why don't you, take a step back and see what big trouble making a CBWs approach can make. I dare anyone to take on the whole CBWs approach.

It's all important

Admittedly, I have no interest in participating in the phenomenon of Mark's Showplace. There are simply too many facts to that peculiar, perhaps even highly suspect, notion that we can all have our cake and eat it too. For instance, a reader of CBA wrote to voice one's disapproval to the idea of losing CBWs, but Mark's, showing the CBWs from CBWs's practice of an independent dance troupe. I will not accept the view that women's need to find a way for the CBWs to flourish.

I am strongly opposed to any CBWs. And with Niss down and out, it's the right time for concerned women and men across the country to reconsider its priorities.

Finally, activist groups like Feminists Against Rape and the Prostitution Awareness Campaign have of the CBA's intentions.

Press Herald

Employers explain philosophy

Regarding the above question CBA, I share your concern. It is an important element to remember that we are all individuals to our own devices. Because I share the same view, I have not been able to find a way to express it. I am not sure if the media is working to fulfill this role.

I thought Jason Wilkins' "Review of Basic Instinct" was excellent. Jason, as usual, we have a good idea that he be making the CBA will be to the next month. I do not think that the CBA will be the next to suffer.

And with the answer to the question of the CBA's intentions, I have not been able to find a way to express it. I am not sure if the media is working to fulfill this role.

Good and bad news about CBWs

I am an editor of the CBA. The question of what to do or not to do with CBA is a very important question. I would like to share my thoughts on the subject.

On one hand, there are many people who believe that CBA is a necessary evil. They see it as a way to control the activities of women. On the other hand, there are those who believe that CBA is a form of discrimination against women. In my opinion, CBA is a necessary evil. It is a form of discrimination against women. It is a form of discrimination against women. It is a form of discrimination against women.

Video Expo, don't stop there

You never know. In fact, it might be too early to be there. Don't be confused. Not all people can do without CBA. It is too early to be there. It is too early to be there. Don't be confused.

Ruth Foss

People, you're not going to end up like the poor old women on the streets and your solutions are not in question. If you see me and if you think that there is something wrong with the CBA, then do something about it. I will try to be there.

Judy Foss

I don't think you can go through life without the CBA. We have to be alert to the fact that the CBA is not the only way to solve the problem of sexual harassment.

We certainly don't have the luxury of being able to solve the problem of sexual harassment in this country. We have to be alert to the fact that the CBA is not the only way to solve the problem of sexual harassment.

Citizen

There are many people who believe that CBA is too hard on the women. I do not believe that CBA is too hard on the women. The women's needs are not taken into account when the CBA is enforced. The CBA is not a solution to the problem of sexual harassment, but it is a part of the solution.

Walk this way

Tonight at 6, Kevin Show and his many strange but never dull alter egos will open for Show Alone, a one-man comedy revue happening at 22 Foster Ave. The show runs every Friday, Saturday & Sunday through May 31. Tickets are $4, & all tickets go for a good cause and reservations: Tightly hugging Charlie Kohlhase, Boston's own bluegrass cartel band, takes up residence at the college all night and tomorrow, with sets at 9 & 11. The impressive Charles Kohlhase and his madcap colleagues will use the unusual gait from Dukes to Biddenden to kick off Kohlhase's own idiosyncratic compositions. Call 777-8114 for more details.

Barry Holusha paints beautifully. Go see his work at a benefit reception for The Nature Conservancy tonight from 5:30-8:30 at Thomas Moore Cafeteria, 417 Congress Ave., Portland. Call 777-3971 for further details.

Help the Malheur Society celebrate its first anniversary - the birthday of founder Ken McCollum - and the passing of Portland's Gay Rights Ordinance — with jazz singers, songwriter and pianist Susan Van Hees, from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Foss Auditorium of Portland Public Library. Barbara's kitchen will serve the detectives. Call 677-2075 for more.

And now, the moment you've all been waiting for!

Existential angst & the joys of motherhood in Brunswick

Giorgiaa Nall and Susan Cleveland make industrial-age paintings that test the boundaries of traditional aesthetics. The show in the Fast Gallery runs through June 12, and features the works of these two American painters. The show is sponsored by the Maine Artist Association and the Fast Gallery, which is located at 3 Main St., Brunswick. The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10am to 5pm, and Sundays from noon to 5pm.

Giorgiaa Nall, a painter, sculptor, and printmaker, is also an art teacher. In the show, her medium is oil paint, and she welcomes viewers to discover new possibilities. "The Green Grass," painted under the shadows of a tree, is a scene of a group of children playing on a grassy hillside. The figures are rendered in bright, vibrant colors, creating a sense of joy and movement. The artwork is available for purchase, and can be viewed online at giorgiaannall.com.

Susan Cleveland, a multimedia artist, creates works that explore the intersection of traditional and contemporary art forms. Her piece, "The Green Grass," incorporates mixed media elements, including canvas, wood, and wire. The artist's work is exhibited at various galleries in Portland and Brunswick, and can be found at susanclevelandart.com.

Both artists are interested in exploring the idea of nature and its relationship to humanity. Their works reflect a deep appreciation for the beauty and complexity of the natural world, and the ways in which human beings connect with it. The show is open to the public, and admission is free. The gallery is open Tuesday through Sunday from noon to 5pm.

Romping through a magical land

Step through the wardrobe with Peter, Susan, Lucy and Rhubarb as they venture into a wonderland land filled with magical creatures, in C.S. Lewis' "Narnia." The children's audience to move Narnia from the end scenes of The White Witch and the Wardrobe into the magical syrpryge and its7ighted ruler, the mystical Mr. Aslan.

"One of the issues touched upon in Narnia is coming of age for the child. At a certain stage, when the child is growing up, there are certain child, adults, and those between the two. The story has a great deal to do with growing and changing. May be a perfect time to present "Narnia."

See the production courtesy of Nonstop Nogs, the community theater at the Theater Project, May 15, 16, 22 & 23 at 7 p.m., and May 17, 18 & 19 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for kids and seniors. Advance reservations are strongly advised. The theater is located at 128 School St, Brunswick. For more info, call the Theater Project at 729-6944.

May 1992

Dear Casco Bay Weekly

Through your paper, I learned that a business in Portland was for sale.

I thought I would contact them and see if there was any interest in the purchase. I was able to get in touch with the owner and we set up a meeting.

The owner was willing to sell the business but was hesitant to do so until he could find a buyer. He offered a price and requested that I come in to see the facility.

I arrived at the location and was greeted by the owner. He took me on a tour of the facility and explained some of the services offered.

I was impressed with the business and felt that it had potential. We had a thorough discussion about the business and its future. The owner was interested in the possibility of selling the business to me and we agreed to work out the details.

After the meeting, I did some research on the business and its potential. I found that the business had a good reputation and was well established.

Finally, I made an offer to the owner and he accepted. We agreed on a price and the terms of the sale.

I am pleased with the purchase and I am excited to take on the new business. I am confident that I will be able to turn a profit and continue to grow the business.

Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

Larry Lambas
