The softball park at Kiley Field on Portland's Eastern Promenade looks inviting, even on a rainy day when the players have gone home and the bay beyond the outfield fence is steely gray. The infield diamond has been raked with care, and the chalk marking baselines, batters' boxes and the pitching circle is so neat it looks like paint. Grab a bat, a ball and a friend, and hit a few fly balls. To hell with the rain. But look closer and the field appears as raggedy as a game played in steady drizzle with temperatures in the 40s. To reach the gate near home plate, players must lug their equipment from a frayed sidewalk to a chewed-up embankment. The team benches are crude, and the players sit on a board wide enough for the rear end of a 6-year-old. The third base "dugout" is littered with paper plates, an empty beer can and wrappers. The outfield has bare spots, crabgrass and dandelions. Danielle DiFillipo doesn't mind. She's the co-captain of the Portland High School girls softball team, and she just wants to play. So what if the boys varsity baseball team plays at Hadlock Field, a shiny new stadium built for a professional ball club. Hell, boys baseball draws fans and girls softball doesn't. The girls even go to Hadlock Field after their practices at Kiley to watch the boys games, according to DiFillipo. But it would be nice, she said, if they mowed the outfield grass at Kiley Field a little more often. That's just the way it is. She doesn't feel like a second-class citizen. She shouldn't. When classes are over and co-curricular activities begin in the Portland school district, the real second-class citizens are the kids in the orchestra, bands, drama club and all other nonathletic programs. The pecking order goes like this: boy jocks, girl athletes and then everyone else. That's just the way it is.
When Dan Molloy and Arney Huscwall purchased the site of what is now the Congress Street Diner, they had high expectations. Anyone could open a restaurant. The challenge now is making it work.

The City of Portland's Department of Economic Development, along with the Portland Community Redevelopment Agency, helped to move the business concept forward and offer both long and short term suggestions to help transform the site into a successful venture.

The downtown location, near the heart of the business area, is currently used as a meeting place for the downtown Portland Community Rehabilitation Agency and the Diner's business is growing.

The Diner serves an array of menu selections. The menu is designed to provide a variety of meal options for all tastes and budgets. The offerings include items such as American and International dishes, as well as vegetarian and gluten-free options.

The Diner's atmosphere is welcoming and comfortable, with seating available both inside and outside.

Tuesdays: Whiskey & Sinatra
Zippy serves up Martini Mondays
Wedges: Sharon Tate's Basement

From baby blue squirrels to pink summer shades, she'll make you the cocktails time you call.

Diner is enjoying success beyond their wildest expectations — and contributing to the Olive Oil.

The SWOT team was formed to analyze the business venture and offer both long and short term suggestions. It includes a specialized group of talented Portland business consultants, known as a SWOT team. The team's goal is to provide innovative and individual business solutions to help businesses succeed.

When all the changes were in place the department coordinated a ribbon cutting ceremony and invited the press to kick off the opening.

The Diner is located at 291/2 Forest Ave., Portland, next to Zootz! For more information, call 774-6404.

Enjoy a variety of soups, lunch entrees, Sunday breakfast, and broken - they need repairs. The repairs take up a lot of our money. We've tried to make some tough choices. Just like in the real world."

The superintendent said none of the co-curricular committee's recommendations may be overridden.

"The committee's report does not come right out and say that existing funds for sports and clubs should be suspended and reallocated, but rather that Roland and I can say that exactly what should be done.

"That's the way it feels. They supply us with the formula for distributing money for these programs isn't likely to happen in our lifetime."

"If we really feel like we don't get the same treatment as sports teams do their own fundraising, but they also get the majority of their money from the budget.

"I don't want to expand my efforts trying to get more grants for the arts.

"We're going to make a decision about the future of the arts, but we're going to be careful about it."

"I knew what the situation was when I started working at Portland High School."

"It's sad, actually, the way people look at each other, as though they expect them to be different."

"We could highlight other healthy activities. . . ."

"The secretary of the Co-curricular Study Committee, Karen Edwards, directed us to cut other sports."

No sex of experience. Her beauty, voice, and soul breaking. Nashville. Nashville has helped a lot of fans get through hard times and broken hearts. Nowils Exposed is coming to the Cumberland County Civic Center at 8 p.m. for a blues-inspired show Opening Night Ball at 5 p.m. Tix: $30, dinner included. Charlie Brown and Ruth Brown

Since her remarkable comeback — both personal and professional — in the late 60s, Ruth has continued good music with good words. She’s a co-founder of the Rhythm & Blues Foundation, which has helped artists in the distinctly American tradition get paid, and paid for what they do. And at the civic center show, special Gold Circle seats and a private reception with Ruth will raise money for the gay rights organization Maine Women’s Democratic. Tix are also encouraged to bring comfortable sandals down to the show to distribute, by the Good Shepherd Food Bank.

All in the dysfunctional family: two different plays prove that family values can be inflated
By Cathy Miller
Rrr, to paraphrase Traynor, every family is dysfunctional in one way or another, and two obvious examples prove the saying: one is this week's productions. Vintage Rep gives in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" and Mad, at Fort "A Southern Clare Is Gonna Seed: "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof"

In "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," Tennessee Williams's controversial play, three generations of a Southern family converge in the Atterbury Plantation home of Big Daddy, an elderly aristocrat, who is in failing health. His estranged, New York writer son, Brick, and his estranged, New York writer son, Brick, return home to oppose his marriage to Elizabeth, a young Southern belle. The play is a wild ride through the family's secrets and lies, as well as their love and hatred for each other. The cast is led by Dennis Scott as Brick, LuAnn Leen as Elizabeth, and Bruce Pineau as Big Daddy.

In "A Southern Clare Is Gonna Seed," a new play by Southern playwright Barbara T. Smith, a Southern family gathers at an old plantation for a family reunion. The family is made up of the towering patriarch, Big Daddy, his son, Brick, and his daughter, Elizabeth. As the family gathers, secrets are revealed and old grudges are settled. The play is a dark comedy, and the cast is led by Dennis Scott as Brick, LuAnn Leen as Elizabeth, and Bruce Pineau as Big Daddy.

Both productions are directed by Andrew Sokoloff, and are not to be missed. "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" runs through June 30, and "A Southern Clare Is Gonna Seed" runs through July 13.

Welcome...

... to the Old Port Festival, the first real day of the summer! This event is known as the best one-day festival in New England and showcases Portland's historic, waterfront area with its cobblestone streets and gas lanterns.

This year, the Festival has been expanded, and music stages are placed throughout the Old Port, each specializing in a type of music. These stages will feature many hours of great rock 'n roll, jazz, blues, country, and rhythm & blues! The Children's Area has doubled in size with the Children's Miracle Network Telethon, over 20 great games, and children's outdoor rides! And, of course, we will have a wide variety of international and American cuisine. Returning this year will be the exhilarating aerobics stage with aerobic demonstrations throughout the day.

The 1995 Old Port Parade will kick off the 23rd Annual Old Port Festival. This highly acclaimed parade will start at 11 a.m. and travel from City Hall to Exchange Street, right on Fore Street, and end on Union Street. There will be something for everyone, so don't miss it! Come and enjoy the 1995 Festival. It is going to be better than ever!

Sincerely,
Keith Citrine
Director, Old Port Festival

Handcrafted, smooth, bold and flavorful.
Katahdin Beers.

Brewed for a light, crisp taste; one batch at a time. Katahdin beers are handcrafted to provide a crisp, clean taste and a potent flavor. Katahdin Golden Ales, Katahdin Red Ale, with its full-bodied taste and distinctive flavor that surpasses the imports, and Katahdin Stout, with its roasted barley flavor and smooth texture, are favorites of the locals.

Katahdin Beers, with its named barley flavor and smooth body that adds a touch of sweetness, is a very distinctive mountain beer.

For more information on Katahdin Beers, call 207-772-2600.

Why 100% of 2,000 AAA customers return to Century Tire for their tire and auto service needs.

Old Port Festival Guide

The 23rd Annual Old Port Festival is sponsored by Portland's Downtown District (POD). Citrine Resources is the producer of the Festival on behalf of POD.

The mission of POD is to encourage and support the economic vitality of downtown Portland through marketing and management programs, provided individually and in cooperation with other organizations in broad-based revitalization efforts. POD, an association of property owners and businesses in downtown Portland, was formed to encourage and support the economic vitality of the Downtown Portland area. POD's program provides services designated to market the area as well as to keep it clean and hospitable. In addition to the Old Port Festival, POD's other programs and efforts include Association, Veteran's Day, summer entertainment, and other collaborative efforts for economic vitality of downtown Portland.

Children's Miracle Network

Since 1990, Maine Medical Center has been a participating member of a very special program known as the Children's Miracle Network Telethon. The Children’s Miracle Network is an international organization whose membership consists of more than 150 hospitals dedicated to meeting the healthcare needs of children. The Telethon is a twenty-four hour show broadcast each year on the weekend following Memorial Day. Hosted by Marie Osmond and John Schneider, it is the largest Telethon in the country and is broadcast on the people of Maine through the generosity and leadership of WMEX-AM NewsRadio-13.

Maine Medical Center's Children's Miracle Network program serves thousands of children and their families in a time of need, regardless of their income, class or ability to pay. Nothing is more important than the health and well being of our children and Maine Medical Center is clearly a leader in this worthwhile effort.
