PLAT OF MONHEGAN CEMETERY

Monhegan Island, Maine

Editha H. Nelson
......And near by is the little cemetery where the fathers sleep. A healthy place is this and there is hardly an average of one death per year. When such an unhappy event does occur all business here is suspended. The lobster traps are drawn and the nets and seines are spread to dry. The entire community come together for the funeral in the little church and sad indeed are the parting scenes. No hearse is here but strong arms bear the bier up the rugged path to the little city of the dead. The men take turns in this silent and sacred task, and with tears and tender words the friend is committed to mother earth. Such is a funeral on Monhegan and who shall say that it is not more reverent than the gaudy trappings and senseless mummeries that our modern civilization demands?

   Ere sin could blight a sorrow fade
   Death came with friendly care
   The opening bud to heaven conveyed
   And bade it blossom there
   Thy dimpled hands lie folded
   Across thy peaceful breast
   But angels have bourne thee
   To a glorious home of rest -
   Then, parents, dry those tears
   Thy Clara is an angel now
   In a land of life & beauty
   While a crown adorns her brow.
