Do you know who these people are?
The safest bed in town
People without homes can find a bed for the night. The one in the programmer's schedule that began brewing last winter is the Belfast Southampton Community Shelter. The door is open every night at 9, and people who want will be out by 7:00 a.m.

The shelter is at 122 Federal St., next door to the post office, and there are 20 beds with mattress and sheets. People who are under the influence of drugs or alcohol are welcome. Only women are turned away, because, says Rathbun's Department Director, Sergeant Cara Moore, they are so loud that other guests can't sleep. In its three-year history, the program has housed many people who are living in single rooms or supported privately by current donations.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE...
Register and vote
It's not too late, and lots of people want to help you.
In Maine, you can register to vote on Election Day, but you can't do it at the polls. Go to City Hall from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Register your stuff. You'll need something with your current address printed on it. If you're a naturalized citizen, you'll need to show the city, the state, and the court that you were naturalized.

Get yourself to City Hall. If you can't get there yourself, there are quite a few options. Call them at 774-8555. Also try the Republican Party at 775-0030. We're in this front door and head right. Go to the end of the hall.

Then, get yourself to the polls. Again, the Democratic Party will give you a lift to the polling place. So will Edward O'Meara's campaign.

But a new voter is beyond the city hall but according to Portland Public Works, the leader of that system over time. To play hard with the newbies, people who have the same address are not in the ballot. A blank slate (covered with 150 people) can apply for an absentee ballot. If you can't get to the polls, you can vote on an absentee ballot. Call the Clerk's Office at 774-0047, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., weekdays. You'll need your name and address.

The report, entitled "Troubled Waters," was issued jointly by the Island Institute of Bedford, Mass., and the Conservation Law Foundation of Boston, America's largest harbor custodian. The C.I.P. has gone to court to recover every single cent of the money the state has been unable to pay for the last five years.

Nantucket to spend winter in Portland

The Nantucket Lightship, the oldest active ship in the United States, is moving from Nantucket to Portland to spend the winter. The ship is owned by the Nantucket Lightship Preservation Inc. The organization's goal is to find a permanent home for the vessel. The ship spent the summer at the South Street Seaport in New York.

Nantucket Lightship

The ship is a 400-ton, 144-foot steel-hulled structure built in 1854. It is one of the last surviving whaling ships in the world. The Nantucket Lightship Preservation Inc. is minded to find a permanent home for the vessel. The ship spent the summer at the South Street Seaport in New York.

Big bucks bag boy bigky

After having already decided to run for the presidential election of 1988, George Bush was confronted with a new set of challenges. The campaign was a difficult one, as he faced competition from several other candidates.

Bush visits Portland

Finally, the candidate arrived. As Bush was at the podium, he met with some of the thousands of supporters who had gathered to hear him speak. The speech was well-received, with the audience responding enthusiastically to Bush's每一个 word.
On Tuesday...

Portlanders will elect eight representatives and two senators to the Maine State Legislature in Augusta.

South Portland will send three more representatives. Scarborough and Westbrook will each send two. Cape Elizabeth and Falmouth will each send one. Altogether 17 of Maine's 151 representatives and two of the state's 35 senators will be elected here.

On Tuesday, how are you going to use your power?

You go into the voting booth and you make your pick for President. No problem.

Then you choose your representatives to the U.S. Congress. You probably remember them. One used to be Governor; one spent the summer of 1987 on TV explaining American Politics to Oliver North. No problem.

You're left holding a list of local names. There's a little description of each right before the ballot. It's a little bit about who might get the money, and what all of it is to better the money. Some you'll see, some you won't.

No problem.

Then the crisis arises. There's a number, followed by one or two names, for example, House District 38. Danger! It's an incumbent. Republican Peter Murray. Pick him.

Who the heck are these people? What do they do? "They're running for office," you think. But slowly it comes back to you. One of the names looks familiar. It's been on a sign stuck to your neighbor's door for a year. You get the idea.

One of them will go to Augusta to represent you.

One of them will help determine how to spend millions of your dollars — for everything from schools to street signs and mental health institutions. And the other name on the ballot is your other representative. Who are these people? You, but then you have to cast a vote for one of them.

The questions

We asked you. You asked us. On the following pages you'll find information about every Portlander who is running for one of the offices listed in this issue.

You'll also find the names, addresses and phone numbers of every candidate running from a legislative district or the cities and towns surrounding Portland. We're sorry we couldn't include every single one of those who ran, but we were limited by space and time. We hope the candidates you haven't interviewed here, if not their names and phone numbers, will send you a message for your vote — go ahead and call 'em at home and ask them some questions of your own.

Remember, they can't represent you unless they know who you are. It's your responsibility to provide health insurance to all able-bodied employed and unemployed. They do reflect real problems. They did attract real answers.

Our proposed legislation

Here candidates are asked to your questions, and try to answer them to your satisfaction. Candidates are asked to do their homework before agreeing to any bill. They should be able to tell you exactly as they were presented to the candidates. We told them that we would print their supporting rationale — provided that it began with the word "yes" or the word "no."

The answers

We asked them to do their homework before accepting any candidates or any bills. Many of them replied with composed sensations on our bill.

We think some of their bills sound like great legislation. We'd like to see those bills added in August.

We heard a few themes over and over. Affordable housing is near the top of the list, and education is not far behind. Health insurance has turned out to be the most divisive. Democrats will let employers pay for health insurance, while most Republicans are on strike over what one or two people have to pay for health insurance. The state may not which employers can pay for health insurance.

Bob Hains claimed that it's unfair to employers who pay for health insurance. Employees will pay for health insurance. The state will pay for health insurance.

The Gorham House is owned by Swedish interest but it’s like the Portsmouth fog now.

Do you have any odd stories of things you’ve had to do in this role?

In 1978, the Swedish Prime Minister came and stayed with us at our home in a secret trip.
Because of the United Nations commitment, his understanding of state and the prime minister said, “Let’s go to Malmo for the weekend” and in the family of them came to our guest house in New York.

How long is this appointment?

If the appointment continues

these.

Do you make many requests for these?

I do.

Kelly Norton doesn’t speak any Swedish.

Can you say “no” in any language?

Yes.

Atchafalaya

Atchafalaya is a series of paintings and works on paper that celebrate the beauty of the Atchafalaya Basin. The Atchafalaya Basin is located in the Louisiana Delta and is one of the largest wetlands in the world. The works in this series are inspired by the natural beauty of the basin and the people who live there.

In the artists' own words: "Atchafalaya is a series of paintings and works on paper that celebrate the beauty of the Atchafalaya Basin. The Atchafalaya Basin is located in the Louisiana Delta and is one of the largest wetlands in the world. The works in this series are inspired by the natural beauty of the basin and the people who live there."

On the Wall is pleased to announce the November opening of "Atchafalaya" by Jann Blood and Paul Merson. The exhibit runs from November 3rd through December 17th at the main gallery with an artist reception on November 3rd from 5-9 PM.

"I'm tough to satisfy.
Only GE gave me satisfaction—guaranteed!"

"My GE Dealer told me I had up to 90 days to decide if my GE microwave met my expectations. If I had a problem, he said he'd replace the radio, or give me my money back. Now that's what I call a good deal!"

Satisfaction Guaranteed. Now the highest quality microwave ovens are backed by the strongest customer assurance program. For full details contact:
