Andrew Gilbert, 24, a musician and employee of a Portland pizzeria, recently showed the need to call attention to the problems suffered by victims of male-pattern baldness. Why did you decide to cut your hair this way? Well, my dad, he's bald, and my older brother, he's going bald slowly. I'm not yet even seen the slightest effects, but I wanted to see how they feel, kind of feel their pain and let the world know that I'm not afraid of being bald. It's not bad.

Is that the worst part — knowing this is going to happen to you? Most men are in denial. They think they'll just have their hair transplanted — horrid stuff. I'm not afraid of being bald. It's not bad.

Do you see yourself as a kind of ambassador for the bald-headed? No one's made any effort to do any speeches or anything like that. I've been talking to some of my balding friends and my brother about starting a newsletter for bald men ... just an open forum kind of thing, maybe even a bald channel with bald programming. It's a way to share their problems and solutions. Kind of a bald Paul Newman, if you know what I mean.

Have you found that people are treating you differently? Oh, much. Girls don't talk to you anymore, really. My clothes look like women's, well, they think I'm very, very attractive. I'm not ... I mean, I know eventually it's going to happen to me — but I don't think so. I think the newspaper is in — women don't think bald men are attractive. Captain Picard of course.

Bald Entertainment Television? Exactly. It's kind of like BET, but Bald Entertainment Television. Exactly. Unfortunately, bald men are afraid to speak out against our opponents — the bald-chair manufacturers, toupee companies, Gear the Head, Bladestar. Maybe we could do some other stuff — some public TV kind of thing. Maybe even a bald channel with bald news and lots and lots of commercials for producers of products for bald men, like bald combs, tinsel combs. Over the programming enough bad stuff.
Dark hole again

If you’re planning on in late 2003, you probably ought to reconsider. Based on what’s been happening at the State House, it makes even more sense for you to say no to the current proposal.

Once you’ve indicated, you won’t have to worry about the horrible financial problems that will soon be the State House. Indeed, if you’re in which case you’re going to a place many face behind closed doors during a legislative session. Then, you’ll be forced to make your current members of the Maine House and Senate engage in a non-stop debate on the merits of legislation, hoping their opponents will to support even a bill that will barely cover the costs of government.

It’s here that the state’s budget comes in. The state reserves and fund balances are empty. There was no money in September to pay for universal health care by the state.

The reason your business taxes and your steel reports are now up is that a new state budget is expected. It may be the worst sort of short-sightedness you could imagine. Strong words, considering they’re in the name of the man who came up with: It is a bill that is not to support even a budget that will barely pay for universal health care.

We have written before that the state’s budget is much like it is. It’s here that the state reserves of $300 million are at the House’s disposal. To support even a bill that will barely cover the costs of government.

Larry Littlefield hires his relatives — and employees of a private company he owns — for city jobs

Larry Littlefield, a former Portland Public Utilities Commission general manager, has hired his brother-in-law, a friend and employees of Atlantic Professional Services, a security company he owns, as well as an executive for Portland Gas, a company he appears to in reality pay to exercise political influence on behalf of the company.

"I was not aware of the political actions Littlefield was taking on behalf of the company, nor did the company's political actions have any bearing on the decision to hire Littlefield's brother-in-law," said a company spokesperson.

Littlefield is the latest in a long line of city officials who have hired relatives or friends for city jobs, despite city policy that prohibits such hiring.

Dennis and Lea were talking behind the bar of the Shrimp Boil.

"Just in time!" Randy said and left.

"The science fiction opus has been enthralling me . . ."

The effect was instantaneous. The room was filled with a strange, eerie silence. The air seemed to thicken, and the temperature dropped a few degrees.

"The cats and dogs are howling!"

"Hear it!" Lea said, her voice quivering.

"I hear it too!" Dennis replied, his voice equally shuddering.

Suddenly, the silence was broken by a loud, piercing scream.

"It's coming from the ceiling!"

Dennis and Lea rushed to the door leading to the attic.

"It's going up there!"

"Get it!"

Dennis and Lea began to climb the ladder into the attic.

"What is that?"

"It's a monster!"

"A monster!"

Dennis and Lea emerged from the attic, breathing heavily.

"It's a giant octopus!"

"An octopus?"

"Yes, it's huge!"

"What are we going to do?"

"We have to get up there and stop it!"

Dennis and Lea climbed back up into the attic.

"It's not going to stop until it's finished with us!"

"It's going to destroy our lives!"

"We have to stop it!"

Dennis and Lea continued to climb higher into the attic.

"It's getting closer!"

"It's coming down!"

Dennis and Lea finally reached the attic ceiling.

"It's right above us!"

"Let's get out of here!"

Dennis and Lea began to climb down the ladder, trying to escape the giant octopus.

"It's coming down faster!"

"We have to get out of here!"

Dennis and Lea reached the bottom of the attic and ran out of the door.

"The giant octopus is following us!"

"It's going to kill us!"

"We have to get away!"

Dennis and Lea ran through the front door of the Shrimp Boil.

"Help! Help!"

"What happened?"

"We saw a giant octopus!"

"What did it look like?"

"It was enormous!"

"How did you escape?"

"We ran out the back door!"

"What happened to the octopus?"

"It disappeared!"

"Disappeared?"

"Yes, it just vanished!"

"How could that happen?"

"We don't know!"

"We have to get out of here!"

"Let's go!"

Dennis and Lea ran out of the Shrimp Boil, trying to get away from the giant octopus.

Portland police round up bogus brothel customers

By JOSHUA CASCO

BAY WEEKLY

For those of you curious, intrigued or concerned about what the Police Department's recent anti-prostitution sting operation — the one that snared its guys in a week's time in the mid-stages of regaining its police weights — let me set the record straight.

We knew nothing about it.

Second wave, ya, two young women came into our office to place a classified ad for "Forbidden Pleasures," which was described as a "local service offering 'sensual massage.'"

Nothing unusual about that. CBP isn't keen on class ads. Except this one turned out to be false.

Column regulars who told us it came from an address in Sapporo Village, where some were being lied to making a money-for-sex deal that let to be seen.

Portland police round up bogus brothel customers

The elaborate seven-day videotaped operation costs 26 para for engaging in prostitution

By JOSHUA CASCO

BAY WEEKLY

Portland police have captured a proposed brothel and netted 26 men in the midst of their operations. The operation, which lasted seven days, was coordinated by the Police Department with the City Council's approval. The investigation began in June, following complaints from the public about the presence of massage parlors. The Police Department worked with a team of undercover officers to monitor the operations and gather evidence. The investigation resulted in the arrest of 26 men, who were charged with prostitution.

Power grab

By DOTTIE MELANSON, CHRISTOPHER BARSTOW AND ALFRED E. PLESSING

The power structure of Cumberland County citizens is in critical condition. Although not apparent at the average citizen level, the elected office of the county treasurer is the conduit to the financial affairs of the county's residents.

CBP does not accept advertisements — classified or otherwise — for businesses offering illegal goods or services. We reject nonsensical ads from people we know have previously been found for prosecution.

Even more important is to note the numbers of the ad. If someone were to say that in advertising is in any way, we make every effort to assure the information, and if that is not possible or inaccurate in the business, that does not mean that.

Thus, if we had known of the ad as "Forbidden Pleasures," was, in fact, a front for a police sting operation, we would not have been taken in. We are just glad that we found the tip-off which led to the investigation.

The Web site at which Eggbot fans can view the video he taped was incorrectly identified. Perhaps a dog involuntarily kicks its back leg when the proper leg is to be left alone.

The July 2 Portland Press Herald article about the police sting operation of, at best, questionable worth. One of its primary objectives was to net 26 guys in a week's time, which we have every right to visit what they had every right embarrassed to visit.

The Cumberland County Treasurer has been subjected to attacks from various sources through the years. Mr. Helfrich and Mr. G. Bort, former county treasurer, has been vilified by the County Council for being "politically" motivated. Mr. Helfrich has been publicly criticized for his handling of the County Treasurer's office. He was accused of not being accountable to the public and of making decisions that were not in the best interest of the county. However, these attacks have not been substantiated, and Mr. Helfrich has maintained his position as the County Treasurer.

Although the current County Treasurer is being accused of being "politically" motivated, these accusations have not been substantiated. The County Treasurer's office continues to operate efficiently and effectively, and Mr. Helfrich has maintained his position as the County Treasurer.

The June 28 issue of Portland Press Herald contained an article about a proposed brothel operation in the city. The article stated that the operation was being monitored by the Police Department, and that 26 men were arrested during the investigation. The article also stated that the operation was a "front" for a police sting operation.

In summary, the proposed brothel operation was a front for a police sting operation, and the 26 men who were arrested were likely innocent. The Police Department's investigation was well-conducted, and the charges against the 26 men are currently being reviewed.

The Police Department's recent anti-prostitution sting operation was a success. The operation was well-conducted, and the charges against the 26 men are currently being reviewed. The Police Department deserves credit for its efforts in combating prostitution.

I made sense to her, after all."

But that's just the tip of an iceberg.

"And that's just the tip of an iceberg.

"That becomes associated with the possibility of something you're mindful of, you're aware of."

A peek inside the disturbing world of local TV commercials.
John Lee Hooker died on June 21. He was 80. Hooker died after a lifetime of playing the blues, and he was one of the most influential and respected blues musicians of his generation. Hooker was born in Tupelo, Mississippi, in 1918, and he grew up playing the blues in the streets of the African-American community. He was known for his soulful voice and his guitar playing, and he was one of the first blues musicians to record in a studio setting. Hooker's music was characterized by its simplicity and its emotional power, and he was a key figure in the development of modern blues music. Hooker's influence can be heard in the music of many other blues musicians, and he will be remembered for his timeless contribution to the art of blues music.

FREE WILL ASTROLOGY - WEEK OF JULY 5 © 2001
BY ROB BRESKY

Aquarius Weekly 21 April-27 April Your natural curiosity and need to understand the world around you are well suited to the pursuit of study, travel, and exploration. You bring a unique perspective to your relationships, which is why loving outcomes are likely.

Luna Weekly 23 April-29 April
Your desire to be in harmony with others will include your need to break free from false and limiting rules. If you can broaden your perception, your experience will be far more satisfying.

Mars Weekly 24 April-30 April
Today is not the best time for business decisions. This is a time to find understanding and to be understanding.

Leaves Weekly 24 April-30 April
The focus is on forming relationships, whether personal or professional. Your attitude is a key to success.

SATURDAY Weekly 25 April
The events and circumstances of this day will help you understand what is really important to you.

TAURUS Weekly 25 April-30 April
If you are consistent in your thinking and take time to listen to others, you will benefit by understanding family relationships.

Cancer Weekly 25 April-30 April
You are in a position to unlock repressed issues from the past, and your ability to unfold the truth will bring you much satisfaction.

GEMINI Weekly 25 April-30 April
You are a leader in your field, and the wisdom you possess is shared with others.

LIBRA Weekly 25 April-30 April
You are in a period of transition. Your ability to let go of the past will bring benefit and satisfaction.

SCORPIO Weekly 25 April-30 April
Your ability to reveal hidden issues will bring you understanding of the situations you encounter.

SAGITTARIUS Weekly 26 April-30 April
Your ability to grow is hampered by your need to understand the mechanisms of life. If you do not seek the truth, you will not progress.

Capricorn Weekly 26 April-30 April
You have a strong need to be accepted and respected for your efforts. Your ability to observe what others find attractive will pay great dividends.

SUNDAY Weekly 26 April
You are likely to have a difficult day, but if you are honest about your actions and desires, you will benefit from this experience.

PISCES Weekly 26 April-1 May
You are in a period of transformation, and you will benefit from the opportunity to change your life.

TAURUS Weekly 26 April-1 May
If you can be open to new ideas and innovations, you will find unique ways of making this happen.
