The council, which has representatives from each of the four states, is aimed at addressing land acquisition and federal land management and conservation among affecting the woodland. The council, run by the state of Maine, has been formed to address land acquisition and federal land management and conservation among affecting the woodland.

With the council's help, the council is not formally authorized and has been operating informally. The conservation groups want the council to receive federal and local authorities.

The environmental organizations are also calling for a cohesive state-federal land acquisition strategy, and close cooperation of public agencies and private land trusts to preserve land properties.

We have a dream!

101 better ways to spend $100 million

During the past year, Casco Bay Weekly explored a few dreams for the region. We looked back at how problems have long lingered, and how they might be solved or improved with a bit of inspiration. We calculated the many ways of doing that are "beyond the bounds of imagination." We proposed new and sometimes unorthodox approaches, and noted their political and environmental implications. And we strived to make them happen by getting people interested in what would make our region a better place.

In this special section, we focus on projects that could transform the way we live and work in the region. We've selected 101 ideas that we believe could make a real difference. Some are already in the works, while others are just ideas, but they all have the potential to improve our quality of life. We hope you will consider these ideas for your own use, and encourage others to do the same. We believe that together, we can make Casco Bay Weekly a more beautiful and livable place for all.

56. Rebuild town from the center out. Build healthy town centers, and then spreading up in a bounded, hierarchical manner. Instead, the town expands slowly. Tandem and trench and body may spread, thus making the downtown core even less closed off to traffic entirely.

57. Mix houses with parking. Build housing in mixed and intermingled areas. In Portland, house values are as high as 120% of comparable house prices in comparable communities. A Portland house is as much a produce as a produce stand. So for example, a mid-block alley, an interesting and affordable neighborhood, is near an industrial park, some women would very likely walk to the community center for their exercise, and then not drive to work. Portland, being the last city to walk to their community center.

58. Expand bus service to serve the elderly. Expand bus service to serve certain areas. Develop a downtown system that could provide transportation, making it possible for the elderly to get to the heart of the city.

Maine's Nov. 5 statewide referendum election

Stop the widening, buy land for our kids and keep lock out of the turnpike

There is only one citizen initiative question, seven bond issues and one constitutional amendment on the November ballot. They are all worthy of your consideration. But in these difficult times, we at Casco Bay Weekly recommend financial prudence. We urge you to approve the citizen initiative, the amendment and only the most important bond issues.

Question 1: The Transportation Initiative

"Do you favor the changes in Maine law concerning the widening of the turnpike and the establishment of transportation policy by citizen petition?"

This is the confusing and now infamous turnpike widening question. A "YES" vote would stop the turnpike widening and adopt a new transportation policy. A "NO" vote would allow the turnpike widening and scrap the transportation policy.

Debate over this question has ranged from banal to bizarre. Opponents of the turnpike widening have argued that it is needed to reduce traffic congestion. Advocates, however, argue that it is not needed and that an alternative to the turnpike widening is necessary.

Question 3: Land for Maine's Future

"Do you favor a $35,000 bond issue for the purchase of outstanding recreational and scenic lands, wildlife habitat conservation and increasing public access for Maine's people?"

Since the Land for Maine's Future Board was overwhelmingly approved by voters in a 1997 referendum, the board has acquired more than 60,400 acres of prime Maine land. Public access to lands on Mt. Kineo, Cobbeck Bay, the Island Coast, Mt. Agamenticus and other important areas has been preserved for future generations.

Those who favor the bond issue argue that it is necessary to preserve these lands and ensure public access. Opponents argue that the bond issue is not necessary and that the funds could be better spent on other initiatives.

Question 9: Constitutional Amendment

"Shall the Constitution of Maine be amended to provide that funds appropriated for the Transportation System become assets of the system and may not be diverted to another purpose?"

Among the most controversial of the ballot questions is the one concerning the widening of the turnpike. The "NO" vote to stop the turnpike widening and to put a little money into Maine's future would create 265 jobs on the project and $47 million for state and federal taxes.

The "YES" vote to stop the turnpike widening and to put a little money into Maine's future would create 265 jobs on the project and $47 million for state and federal taxes.

Pumpkin Heads from another world invade the Sonesta Thursday, Oct. 31.

Cheap thrill! Don't do the civil suit.

There's a new dance in town that's all the rage. It's called the civil suit, and all women seem to try it if they are a friend and a lover as well. If you'd like a fray in the highway widening/transportation policy initiative, the $20 million bond for new convoluted facilities in the constitutional amendment to prevent printer's retirement system's assets from being diverted to another purpose—then here's what's happening.

If you want to vote and live in Gorham, Portland, South Portland, Westbrook or Saco, you need to register tonight at the polling place. If you've been registered before, or need new information with which to register, you can do that over the phone or by mail. If you need replacement voter registration cards, they can be obtained from the town clerk. If you are not registered, you can register at the polls.

Today will be an exciting day for those who are interested in participating in the election process. The polls will be open from 7:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. in all school buildings and community centers in your area. It is important to vote today to ensure that your voice is heard and that your interests are represented.

To vote, you will need to present your voter registration card, a form of identification, or any other document that establishes your identity. If you are a first-time voter, you will be required to fill out a voter registration form.

Polling places are open from 7:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. with the last vote to be cast at 8:00 p.m. Each polling place will have a list of candidates running for various offices, and a ballot for each voter to cast their vote. Voters are encouraged to arrive early to avoid long lines.

Remember, voting is your democratic right and duty. Make sure to行使 your right to vote today!

GOOD COOKIN' KATAHDIN

It's all the same, but different. During the week we're served on a field tray and have generally been out for a bite at a lab or the like. So all of us work here as a part of the day is now in the case of the week because of our weekly "good cooker" as usual condition. And the place on a door three times as we are.

Pattie's most sensitive readers, there's been a fairly steady output of recipes with the weekly theme article about the discovery of the merits of the season.

Nothing new is something that's being over a few cup of coffee we're a club venue meeting. The great news is that we'll be able to the due date as Saturday. The bad news is that work that have some work around November 11th. We've been doing the possible for our Sunday brunch. Oranges and buns brought back the rest of the season. We're determined to bring not only the orange buns, but to make all our sandwiches, buns, and other items for our brunch. They will also be a good selection of coffee, tea, and other items to make at a discount.

Short stories sought for Casco Bay Weekly's Relevant Fiction Competition

Casco Bay Weekly is accepting original, unpublished short stories on topics relevant to modern life in the Casco Bay region. A panel of three judges will choose the most compelling entries for publication in the Casco Bay Weekly's Relevant Fiction Issue, Fall 2000. We seek stories that raise questions about some facet of everyday life here in the Casco Bay region. We are looking for stories that deal in the wider context of human experience and deeply touch the reader's imagination. (Please use or submit stories in the generic tradition of short fiction. No poetry, essays, non-fiction, or screenplays will be accepted.)

1. The judges are Fred White, publisher of Portland Press Herald, and Paula Adams, professor of English and director of the Creative Writing Program at the University of Southern Maine.

2. Stories must be between 1,000 and 3,000 words. No attachments.

3. Send the story as an email attachment to: staff@cascobayweekly.com

4. Mail may be sent to: Relevant Fiction Competition, Casco Bay Weekly, 314Main St., Portland, ME 04101-4001

5. Include a cover letter with your name, address, phone number, and a typed or printed story. Electronic stories must be sent no later than 11:59 PM Eastern Standard Time on the deadline.

7. The first prize winner will receive $200, plus 50 copies of the issue containing their story. The second prize winner will receive $100, plus 50 copies. The third prize winner will receive $50, plus 50 copies. There will also be an honorable mention with a $1000 cash prize.

8. Authors of selected stories will be notified within one month of the deadline. Only manuscripts accepted by email will be returned.

9. Stories will be selected in May 2000, and the winners will be announced in June 2000. Stories will be published in Casco Bay Weekly. Award winners will be invited to a special ceremony.

10. The first place winner will receive a Scholarship to the College of the Atlantic in Bar Harbor, ME.

11. Stories which have previously been published will be accepted. However, stories which have previously been entered in contests will be disqualified. Stories which have been accepted for publication will be disqualified. Stories which have been entered in contests but not accepted will be eligible for this competition.
